

Eisenhower, Dulles See Hope For New Dawn Of World Peace

Real Progress Anticipated At Big Four Talks

WASHINGTON, May 17 (AP)—President Eisenhower and his secretary of state held out cautious hope tonight of a new dawn of peace in the world.

Joining in an unprecedented radio-TV report to the nation, the President and Secretary Dulles voiced hope of real progress in forthcoming top level talks with the Russians.

It was Eisenhower who spoke of a possible "new dawn," though he cautioned that this country must stay strong and vigilant—must not get its hopes too high or be misled by any false appearance of agreement.

But he voiced confidence the American people have the maturity to take the right attitude.

And he nodded agreement when Dulles, just back from clear-the-ground negotiations in Europe, said recent events may have "turned the tide of history." Dulles referred to such things as the signing of an Austrian independence treaty and the seating of West Germany in the Atlantic alliance.

Dulles said he was by no means convinced the Russians have "got religion." But he said it does look as if they have decided—in some fields at least—to quit "hacking" the moral standards of the world. And he attributed this mainly to strong and persistent pressure from the West.

That was a theme that ran through the Eisenhower-Dulles talk—that the United States and the rest of the free world have built up strength, are bargaining from a more potent position and that the Russians have changed their tactics accordingly.

Furthermore, Dulles declared that Russia's decision to withdraw troops from Austria as part of the Austrian treaty settlement "is bound to have a tremendous impact" on satellite countries where "Soviet armies are in occupation."

When Austria's freedom has been completed, Dulles said, it will be, for example, the first time that Red-ruled Czechoslovakia has had "an open door" on a free country.

Furthermore, he asserted that the joy of the Austrians in their promised freedom will be "contagious." The Soviets know, he said, that "the people of the satellite countries are going to want to get for themselves the same things the Austrians are getting. They want to dance in the streets some time too."

Dulles built his talk up to the climactic subject of the Big Four meeting and said that many people are puzzling over why the Soviets have undergone some change. He said he personally thought that "the Soviet Union may be feeling it is more convenient for them to conform to some of the rules and practices of the civilized community."

At another point he declared that the policies of strength, firmness and "high moral principles" expressed by the Western powers in allying themselves and in embracing West Germany are "beginning to pay off."

"We find for the first time," Dulles said, "a softening of the Soviet attitude."

In an unprecedented broadcast from President Eisenhower's office, the secretary told the President, the nation and the world of historic negotiations and events in Europe, from which he has just returned.

For one thing, Dulles said the recent agreement putting Germany side by side with France and other nations in the Western defense community has given Western civilization "a new lease on life."

It was "a hard battle," he said, because "the Soviet Union went all out with all it had" to prevent ratification of the treaties for re-arming West Germany.

He pictured the final approval of the pact as the greatest diplomatic defeat the Soviet Union has suffered in recent years.

Longstreth Nominated

By The Associated Press
W. THACHER Longstreth, lanky political newcomer, swept to victory in yesterday's Philadelphia Republican mayoralty nomination race—far and away the highlight of the state primary election.

The 34-year-old advertising executive, running for his first political office, entered a victory claim with a 16,000 plurality over his nearest opponent and better than three-quarters of the city's 1,504 divisions reported.

A short time later his victory was conceded by George P. Williams, 35-year-old former state deputy attorney general, and James J. Clothier, veteran GOP organization worker and magistrate.

The Democrats nominated Richard Dilworth.

Bipartisan Support Develops In Congress For Eisenhower's Polio Vaccine Program

WASHINGTON, May 17 (AP)—The Eisenhower administration's new polio vaccination program gained quick bipartisan support in Congress today. But Sen. Morse (D-Ore) blasted Secretary of Welfare Hobby's handling of Salk vaccine and declared she ought to be fired for "gross incompetency."

Sen. H. Alexander Smith (R-NJ) introduced a bill carrying out a proposal made by Mrs. Hobby and endorsed by President Eisenhower that the federal government put up 25 million dollars to make sure no child goes without vaccine for lack of money.

Chairman Hill (D-Ala) of the Senate Labor Committee announced he would sponsor the appropriation, too, and said there is "absolutely no question" Congress will quickly approve it. Smith is the committee's ranking Republican.

In the House, Chairman Priest (D-Tenn) of the Commerce Committee put his name to a similar bill. The 25 million dollars would go to the states to provide free vaccination of lower income persons 1 to 19 years of age.

Morse took the Senate floor and said Mrs. Hobby, who has over-all charge of federal health programs, "has been guilty of bad administration that comes close to immorality" in handling the distribution and safety testing of Salk vaccine.

The senator said Mrs. Hobby should be made to visit the hospital rooms of the more than 70 children who have been stricken with polio after vaccination.

To date, there has been no certain tieup between the vaccine and the polio cases.

And he accused both the secretary and Surgeon General Leonard A. Scheele of "crude incompetency." He said Mrs. Hobby is "trying to bulldoze an alibi for an horrendous mistake."

Mrs. Hobby and Scheele defended the Public Health Service's actions in testimony yesterday before the Senate Labor Committee.

Mrs. Hobby opposed moves by many Democrats and some Republicans to provide standby controls for vaccine distribution.

The Public Health Service is continuing an investigation to see if faulty vaccine caused the polio cases. Most of them followed the use of one California plant's vaccine.

In New York, the National Foundation for Infantile Paralysis said distribution of first shots of vaccine for young school children is just about completed throughout the country.

A spokesman said that, except for Massachusetts, vaccine has been shipped for almost all first and second graders and those third and fourth graders who come under the foundation's free immunization program. Massachusetts made its application only last night.

Many children in the country also have received their second shots. Scheele said yesterday, however, manufacturing delays made it questionable whether enough vaccine to fill this top priority order will be available before mid-August.

By that time the polio peak season will be starting, and Scheele said medical authorities may decide on a month's halt in immunizations as a safety precaution.

Butz Defeats Allegar; Post Edges Smith

REGISTER AND Recorder Floyd Butz, seeking a third term, won the Democratic nomination handily at yesterday's primaries, and Edward N. Post, Stroudsburg RD businessman came through with the Republican nomination.

Butz, the veteran, defeated Raymond Allegar, Stroud Township farmer-businessman almost three to one.

The unofficial vote was Butz 2,612 to 990 for Allegar.

Post eked out a victory by the narrow margin of 39 votes over George L. Smith, Middle Smithfield Township resident and chief assessor of Monroe County.

This race was a nip and tuck affair right down to the wire.

Third man in the three-way GOP contest for Register and Recorder nomination was Harry Taylor, Mount Pocono and chief clerk of the county commissioners with 578 votes.

All other GOP candidates for county office were unopposed. Voting on both sides of the ticket was light, but extremely light in the Republican column.

At the November election Sheriff Jacob F. Altenose, Democrat, will face Victor Henning, Stroudsburg, and former deputy sheriff, the GOP nominee.

N. Henry Fenner, Hamilton school teacher and Democrat will battle Trothony and Clerk of the Courts James A. Gould, a first term now and a Republican.

District Attorney Elmer D. Christine, the GOP nominee will be seeking his second term in a contest against former District Attorney Detlef A. Hansen.

Democrats nominated the veteran Mahlon Beseker, now a county auditor and Mrs. Doris S. Smith of Middle Smithfield for county auditor—they were unopposed.

They will battle Mrs. Mary Emma Teeter Garcia and John W. Wernett, the two GOP nominees who were also not opposed. Both are now county auditors.

Army Displays Nike Missile

WASHINGTON, May 17 (AP)—The Army displayed to the public today a unit of its eventual billion dollar system of "back-yard" defenses against enemy bombers, a Nike antiaircraft guided missile battery.

The battery, typical of others now in place around at least 15 northern and coastal cities, is located on farm land at Lorton, Va., 16 miles south of here.

Newsmen were shown a setup consisting of two sites.

7-Year-Old Ludwig Girl Dies Of Burns

BETTY LUDWIG, seven-year-old East Stroudsburg girl who was critically burned when a flaming sock of matches set her clothing and hair on fire two weeks ago, lost her fight for life last night at midnight in General Hospital.

Authorities at the hospital said the child died exactly on the stroke of midnight. An autopsy will be performed today, they said, to determine the direct cause of death.

Surgeons at the hospital had performed a tracheotomy—a delicate throat operation—to clear her throat and nasal passages of inflamed mucous last week. She had been believed recovering slightly from the accident after the operation made it possible for her to breathe again.

At the time of the incident—at 6:15 p. m. on May 3 to the rear of East Stroudsburg Methodist Church—police said an unidentified person had thrown the flaming matches on the girl. They still have no trace of the person involved.

The child was the daughter of Mrs. Jean Ludwig, 55 S. Courtland St. The body will be released to Lantern funeral home today. Funeral services will be announced.

Seven-District Jointure Candidates Win Nominations

BANGOR — Candidates favoring a seven-district school jointure won hotly contested nominations in yesterday's voting in Washington Township.

In the Democratic primary, Ralph Falcone received 237 votes and Pasquale DeNardo, 222, to win party nominations. Both were backed by the Citizen's Committee, which favors the seven-district jointure.

Franklin Shover, incumbent president, polled 140 votes to finish third, but out of the running. Lester Reimer received 136 votes. He and Shover favored a four-district jointure. Clayton Eisher, independent, polled 38 votes.

In the Republican primary, the two nominations were won by two unopposed candidates, William Lange and Theodore Schwanda, both of whom are on record for the seven-district jointure.

Lesoine High Man, Quick Second In Five-Way Contest

THE FIVE-MAN race for the Democratic nomination for county commissioner held top interest in yesterday's primary and a political novice for a county office, John R. Lesoine led the way.

Lesoine's running mate for commissioner next Fall will be Willard L. Quick, Stroudsburg restaurant operator and three times commissioner in the past.

There was no opposition for the two GOP incumbents, Amos F. Altenose and W. Adolph Rake.

Lesoine took off in the early returns and was never headed. He amassed a total of 1,994 votes.

Quick began to forge ahead in early returns, but was beaten here and there in some districts to keep interest in the five-man race high.

He polled an unofficial total of 1,535 votes.

Third man in the Democratic race was Edward Doran, Stroudsburg first ward councilman, with 1,323 votes.

Trailing very closely came Harold Albert, Stroud Township supervisor, with 1,304 unofficial total.

The last man was John Reinhardt, of East Stroudsburg, with 368 votes.

First returns reported came unofficially from Middle Smithfield Township, trailed promptly by returns from Mount Pocono.

Last returns to be reported came from Eastern Tobyhanna Township shortly after midnight.

Rupprecht Nominated For Council

HERBERT C. Rupprecht, Maple Ave., East Stroudsburg, won the Democratic nomination for councilman in the Fifth Ward in East Stroudsburg.

The race for this nomination attracted four candidates and was the major contest for borough offices.

Rupprecht, a teller in Monroe County National Bank, received 58 votes.

Pearly D. Hunt received 50, Chester R. Staples, 33, and Ervin M. Stem, 17.

Ernest R. Frammer, the GOP candidate for nomination, had no opposition and will face Rupprecht for the councilmanic seat in November.

Double Halos Encircle Sun

BUFFALO, N. Y., May 17 (AP)—A double solar halo, described by the U. S. Weather Bureau as "quite rare," could be seen today over a wide area of central and western New York.

The halos, concentric rings around the sun, were reported from Buffalo on the west to the Geneva area on the east. In Geneva, one observer said the sun looked like it was in the middle of a black plate surrounded by a rainbow-hued ring.

The Weather Bureau here said the phenomenon was caused by ice crystals in the air about seven miles above the ground, and indicated a heavy moisture content.

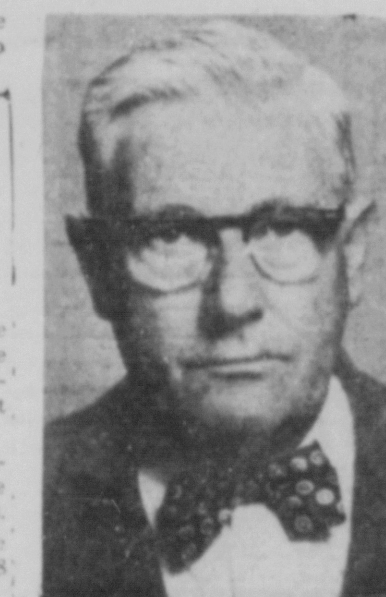

It was also seen over a wide area of north Jersey.

Ike Expected To Act Shortly On Postal Pay

WASHINGTON, May 17 (AP)—President Eisenhower was described once again today by a highly placed Republican as determined to veto an 8.8 per cent increase in the Post Office payroll.

Senate Republican Leader Knowland of California said after a White House conference the President probably will act on postal pay legislation "in the next day or two." And he said he still stands by his prediction of last week that the result would be a veto.

As Knowland and other GOP congressional leaders held their regular Tuesday morning meeting with Eisenhower, a group from Michigan went to another quarter to urge approval of the pay bill passed by Congress. The delegation told Republican National Chairman Leonard W. Hall the raise was justified and a veto would hurt the GOP.

Hall's callers were Donald Leonard, 1954 Republican candidate for governor of Michigan; James H. Rademacher Jr., Detroit president of the AFL National Assn. of Letter Carriers; and Snow F. Grigsby of Detroit, editor of Postal Alliance, organ of the National Alliance of Postal employees.

Leonard said Eisenhower's rejection of a postal pay bill last year was politically "rather disastrous" and argued a repeat would "rob the working man of a talking point for the Republican party."

Hall was quoted as replying the President makes his decisions on grounds of "what is best for the country as a whole."

Council Approves Four-Hour Parking Meters For Sarah St.

Tucker Named To Municipal Authority

FOUR-HOUR parking meters will be installed on two sections of Sarah St., presently covered by two-hour meters, as soon as new mechanisms for existing meter posts can be delivered.

Stroudsburg Council last night ordered 74 meters to cover both sides of Sarah St. from Fifth to Sixth St. and from Seventh to Eighth St. For the present, the Sixth to Seventh St. block will remain a maximum two-hour parking limit.

The four-hour meters will still give the parker 12 minutes for a penny, or four hours for 20 pennies; an hour for a nickel, or four hours for five nickels, two hours for a dime, or four hours for two dimes.

Because Sarah St. is a "fringe" parking area, the four-hour meter plan is being tested by council for persons who wish more than the usual one-hour maximum or the two-hour maximum without inserting additional coins.

Stroudsburg Businessmen have advocated the change to four-hour meters on Sarah St.

Cost for the change-over will run about $20 per meter. An effort will be made to have meters delivered with changed mechanism for a block at a time.

Henry Tucker was named to succeed Gerald M. Anderson on the Stroudsburg Municipal Authority. Mr. Anderson has resigned because he is moving to Pottstown to accept a banking post there.

Council will meet in joint session with the authority Monday night.

The proper borough officers with Attorney George T. Robinson and Engineer Edward C. Iles were authorized to meet with proper state officials to perfect two agreements between the borough and Commonwealth of Pennsylvania.

One deals with the final step for obtaining a $55,000 appropriation to the borough from the state as a capital contribution for expansion of sewage treatment works—based on usage by State Teachers College—and the other involves a new rental agreement for treatment of sewage of that line.

More Adoptions Made Outside Social Agencies, Says Speaker

ADOPTION THROUGH a social agency can bring together the medical, legal, psychiatric and spiritual advice of many professions, said Dr. Elizabeth A. Lawder, director of placement services of the Philadelphia Bureau of the Children's Aid Society of Pennsylvania, as the main speaker at the annual meeting of the County Children's Aid Society last night.

There are many more adoptions made independently than through social agencies, Dr. Lawder said at the outset, with adopting parents considering "red tape" on the one hand and safety on the other.

In independent adoptions, the intermediary may be a doctor who would make sure the baby is well and healthy, or a lawyer who would be sure of legal matters, or a minister who would be concerned with spiritual values, she said. The social agency is able to enlist the help of many professions.

While the agency can not eliminate all risk, they can narrow it down, she pointed out. Since earlier adoptions provide better and more rapid emotional adjustment for both child and adopting parents, she said a child may be placed at the age of four weeks. Even at that early age, psychological testing can establish mental patterns, physical examinations, and the reports of the study home can be compared.

The social agency can also deal with the own mothers who need time to make a choice, and often need help in their own lives, while the independent adoption seldom has the resources to provide that time or real choice. Even for a social agency, there is a responsibility in choosing a home for the child, she said, and that too needs careful study.

Mrs. Jean Albert, executive secretary of the local Children's Aid Society, had earlier pointed out the value of the affiliation with the state organization, pooling supply and demand.

From 1944 to 1954, two Monroe County babies were placed through the state agency, and seven children came to adoptive homes in this county. In 1954, no children were placed from here but two

100 Children Served By County Group

STATISTICS presented in mimeographed form presented the story of the year's activities of the Children's Aid Society of Monroe County in succinct form, leaving the time at the annual meeting held last night at the Penn-Stroud Hotel free for a discussion of special needs, future plans, and a thoughtful presentation of the advantages of adoption through a social agency.

More than 50 were present for the meeting, held in the Treaty Room, with Mrs. Jesse Flory, president in charge. The 24th annual report presented in booklet form showed:

One hundred children involving 52 own families received service from the agency during the year. Of these, 64 children were cared for by the CAS including eight new children accepted into care. There were 12 children involving eight families served through out-of-town involuntary service; and 24 children involving 12 own families given counselling service.

Five children were discharged from care during the year, three to their own parents, one to an institution, and one to self; seven children needed to be replaced.

As of April 30 there were 59 children in care with 53 in boarding foster homes; two in free homes; two in institutions; one with parents and relatives and one in service.

The cost of care during the year average $13.54 per week per child, and included board payments to foster parents, medical and dental care, special needs, case work service and administrative costs.

Active foster homes now number 25; there were five new homes accepted with 2 in active use and 3 awaiting children. One foster home ended its service.

In personalizing this report, Mrs. Jean Albert, executive secretary, gave case history of individual children's adjustment to foster home care, emphasized the continuing need for foster homes for all ages and for both boys and girls, and the need to adapt services to changing conditions.

These changing conditions were emphasized by Mrs. Frank L. Patterson Jr., of Shawnee, chairman of the state advisory committee of the CAS of Pennsylvania, who spoke of the work other counties are doing in combining children's aid and family service work to offer complete counselling for children in need of help.

Miss Ora Pendleton, county agency director of the CAS of Pennsylvania, also spoke briefly.

Mrs. Jack Harris, chairman of the nominating committee, presented the report for directors to be elected for three year terms. Unanimously elected were:

Mrs. Fred Davis, Mrs. J. Byron Deacon, Mrs. Arthur Grotz, Mrs. Jack Harris, Dr. LeRoy Koehler, Walter McClelland, Mrs. Frank L. Patterson Jr., Christie Shull and Mrs. William Wells.

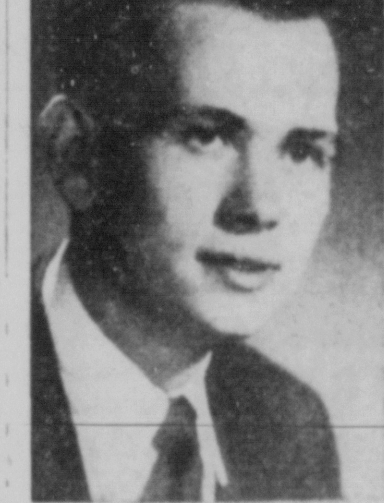

During this past year, four unmarried mothers came to the agency for counselling and help in solving their own problems, she said, a service that is open at all times whether or not they plan to keep their child.

Woman Buys 953-Acre Plot In Coolbaugh

MONROE WATER Supply Co. has sold a 953-acre tract of land in Coolbaugh Township for $38,500.

According to a deed filed yesterday at the office of Floyd Butz, register of wills and recorder of deeds, the land has been purchased by Florence M. McMenamin of Philadelphia.

Located near Tobyhanna, the land runs along Township Road 591. This route connects Route 611 with Route 196.

The deed specifies that any future profits from the land gained from mining of minerals must be shared half and half with the Monroe Water Supply Co., heirs or descendants of persons owning that company.

Mentioned specifically in the deed is the provision that "if the party of the second part, her heirs, executors, administrators or assigns... shall ever remove from the premises any oil, gas, coal, fire clay, iron or other minerals and sub-surface matter, said party... shall pay to the party of the first part, its successors... one half of the proceeds derived from the sale thereof."

Not included in the transfer of land is a five-tenths of an acre cemetery lot lying along the east side of Route 196. The rights of the public in and to Routes 591 and 191 are also reserved.

The deed also reserves "an agreement covering ice-cutting privileges granted by the Tobyhanna and Lehigh Lumber Co. to Pocono Mountain Ice Co." This agreement was dated Oct. 8, 1894. Tobyhanna and Lehigh Lumber once owned the tract.

Other deeds recorded yesterday showed the following: Beatrice Blitstein, Smithfield Township, has sold a 10-acre tract in that township to L. Mae Post; Mr. and Mrs. George W. Hensler, Mount Pocono, have sold a property on Manor View Ave., that borough, to Mr. and Mrs. Paul J. Kelly, Scranton.

The selection of a fitting memorial will forever stand as a tribute to the departed loved one.

It Would Be Nice If Legislators Found The Money Before Spending

Legislation calling for a 50 per cent increase in the salaries paid to the judges of Pennsylvania is before our General Assembly.

It's in the House Rules Committee.

Rep. Albert S. Readinger heads that committee. He's also a big wheel of the House majority, the Democratic floor leader.

"You can say that the committee will give consideration of the bill," he announced, "but not until after a tax program is passed."

This certainly seems reasonable enough.

It would be nice to know where the money is coming from, or even if there's going to be enough to go around, before a new spending commitment is added to the long, long list.

We thought so earlier this month, too, when the House of Representatives voted itself more money—a 67 per cent increase in expense accounts for every member, plus a doubling of the present salary if our Legislature switches over to annual sessions instead of meeting every two years. This vote was 143 "yes" and 23 "no." Representative Readinger, it might be noted in passing, wasn't among the 23.

Maybe, our judges made a mistake when they petitioned the Legislature for more money in a salary increase. Maybe, they should have asked for the same amount of money—only as an expense account.

Our legislators aren't so old-fashioned about first finding the money to pay it with, where expense accounts are concerned. Especially their own.

Not only that, judges, you'd be away ahead. Expense money is all clear. It's tax-free.

Cabinet Post For Political Warfare Would Be Subject To Many Restraints

A grand scale plan for fighting the cold war has been put forth by David Sarnoff, chairman of the board of the Radio Corporation of America. He would create a cabinet post for political warfare, set up a board of strategy with rank equal to the military chiefs of staff, and spend up to $3 billion a year on it.

The purpose: Create dissension behind the Iron Curtain, fan the fires of rebellion, spread the good word about freedom and the American way of life.

We applaud the intent, but can't go along with the approach.

We think it's out of character for the federal government to take on the role of master propagandist. That's the role of the totalitarian states, and they adopt it out of sheer necessity. They hold their administrations together by circuses and sleight-of-hand—and terror; which the propaganda is supposed to sweeten and soften. Propaganda is as vital as air and water to the Kremlin. It has built up a way of life around the notion that an enemy constantly threatens the nations' survival. At first the enemy was within—the counter-revolutionaries. And when this couldn't be used anymore, there always was the enemy without—the capitalists.

Under our political setup, it's unlikely that we ever will have a propaganda organization that's worthwhile. Whatever we have always will be under attack by the other party . . . and it always will be engaged in supporting whatever the administration does.

We'd rather see private enterprise handle this chore. Radio Free Europe, operated by the Crusade for Freedom, has done an excellent job with broadcasts and balloons. Ditto Radio Liberation run by the American Committee for Liberation from Bolshevism.

When these people speak, they don't have to worry about congressional investigations or which party is in power. As a result, they do a better job.

Management-Labor Studies Required To Protect Wage, Community Life Of Worker

Apparently when a thesis that requires full study and accommodation to the national economy is given a title and is symbolized by initials, it is accepted rather than by title and initials than by substance. G.A.W. means Guaranteed Annual Wage, a system already in vogue in many enterprises.

In most industries, the assured annual wage is more difficult than in, say, a slaughter house, because the sale of the commodity may be seasonal or on order. Automobiles are an example of a seasonal industry; structural steel of an on order industry. There is much talk these days of the peaks and valleys in industry being leveled off, but in this conversation, the fact that a large share of production has, for more than a decade, been war production or what is euphemistically called defense production, is too often forgotten. Do we require war or the preparation for war to have full employment?

Walter Reuther's proposal is to supplement State unemployment compensation by the employer which is not exactly a guaranteed wage for work done. What the United Automobile Workers demand is that the Guaranteed Annual Wage plus Unemployment Compensation should be equal to the present take-home pay. This would only apply to those workers who have acquired seniority according to the union-company contract.

One of the problems that faces every worker in every industry in this country is what is called "automation." This is the growing fear among workers that the development of labor-saving and automatic machinery will result in reduced employment or unemployment.

While it is demonstrable that in the past, machines have made jobs, it is also demonstrable that in particular industries, automatic devices have become so perfected that few workers are necessary. It is not contended by anyone associated with either management or labor that the use of automatic devices should be reduced or curtailed; the point is made and has to be considered seriously that no interim period should be permitted to exist during which the purchasing power of large numbers of Americans should be sharply reduced or altogether removed, forcing them on the dole.

In a word, granted that new knowledge and techniques can free human beings from irksome and onerous toil and produce an abundance heretofore unknown, the task remains to minimize the perils of job displacement and family hardships.

It seems to me that this is so serious a problem that it cannot be solved by a strike which will not remove the problem no matter who wins. Involved in all this is the question of the smaller business which is being squeezed out of existence by taxes, wages, beneficial financing by the larger companies and the huge cost of advertising, particularly since the advent of television.

The question is whether it is beneficial to the American economy and to social conditions in this country if only huge monopolistic companies exist. That will not be solved by Attorney General Herbert Brownell's plethora of anti-trust suits, because if it requires say a quarter of a million dollars to buy one automatic machine to be on a competitive basis with an enormous firm, the small man cannot go into that sort of business. If Brownell breaks up large enterprises to prevent monopoly, he still cannot let small men how they can set up businesses which require huge capital outlays to get started and to reach a break-even point.

Nor is the solution to this problem government control of industry on either a Fascist or a Socialist basis. That would involve us in more problems, and less pleasant ones, than we face today.

In the older days of the free market, competition would solve the problem. But we are not living in the older days nor do we have a free market. We live in a mixed economy, a condition prolonged by the continuance of war-like conditions.

The solution does lie in management-labor studies as to how to protect not only the wage but the community life of the worker. We know, from experience during the Depression, that the major problem of unemployment is not the discomfiture of the individual, who can be put on the dole, but the reduced purchasing power of the entire population which leads to vast social and even political changes, some of which are antagonistic to a free society.

Men Caught No More Fish With Old Rusty Tackle

Who took the fun out of fishing? This plaintive question is the text for another of those belly-ache articles (in a recent issue of Cornet) about the trials and tribulations of the latter-day Compleat Angler.

"Remember when going fishing was a simple and entirely pleasant operation?" the writer asks. "Remember the good old days before 18,000,000 licensed, modern, 'educated' anglers began to make such a hard and complicated job of it?"

As I said I was ignorant of the art of angling that I thought I could cut a green cane pole, tie on a piece of string and a rusty hook, grub a few worms from under the woodpile—and catch fish . . .

Today I wouldn't think of advancing on a fish even the smallest stream—without being armed with all the latest paraphernalia of fishing technology . . .

I don't know this gent and, out of common courtesy, I assume that all he says is true. It's a tough life he leads and I am duly sympathetic.

But I know other fishermen who make noises of that same variety. And I stand ready to wager a small sum that most of them who talk about playing hooky in the good old days to pull whoppers out of the good old creek with a good old green cane pole and rusty hook never did it.

My private opinion is that they have got themselves confused with good old Tom Sawyer or even old Huck Finn, who led the kind of boyhood life a lot of other boys used to wish they could.

There comes a time in a man's life when he likes to think he really was a reckless devil in his early days. And sometimes he was, no doubt.

But I have had my normal share of schooling, starting back about 1910. And honesty compels me to testify that, to the best of my recollection, not much more hooky was played in those days than is played today.

Kids may not have liked going to school then as much as they do nowadays, but they went when they were supposed to.

It is also my private opinion that very few men ever caught any more fish with rusty hooks when they were kids than they catch now with what they use of the fancy tackle in their boxes. Chances are they are just mediocre fishermen and always were.

Not that I object to anyone's reminiscing about the good old days and lamenting the passing of their simple pleasures and easy-catch fish. That's a harmless enough pastime.

But when anybody gets to feeling sorry for himself because of all the expensive tackle he has to tote around nowadays, I feel bound to point out that there is still no law against fishing with a good old rusty hook.

Whitfield Appointment To A-Commission Investigated

Washington, May 13: President Eisenhower has a new Atomic Commission fight on his hands.

This one is over his latest appointee to the fateful agency—Allen Whitfield, Iowa attorney, banker and former Republican State Chairman.

Whitfield was appointed more than two months ago (March 10). Not only is he still a long way from being confirmed, but as this backstage situation is shaping up it is conjectural whether he ever will be.

Only thing which appears certain is that he faces rough going in the Joint Congressional Atomic Committee, which has been so deliberative in considering Whitfield's appointment. That is not due to any lack of interest. Far from it; the long delay has been intentional.

Inside reason for it is an exhaustive investigation of Whitfield's business and political activities and connections.

Committee agents have been poring over them with a fine-tooth comb. Their secret reports are being studied by Senator Clinton Anderson (D., N. M.), chairman, and Representative Melvin Price (D., Ill.), who ordered this unannounced probe.

Committee insiders are hinting that Whitfield is headed for grilling regarding "certain banking matters and campaign fund-raising operations."

Democratic leaders have been sharply critical of Whitfield's appointment from the start. These partisan charges have been on two different counts: That Whitfield was named to the crucial atomic position, in which he has had no experience, to "pay off a political debt"; that the appointment was engineered by Senator Bourke Hickenlooper, Ia., ranking Republican on the Joint Committee, to divert Whitfield from running against him next year.

Hickenlooper has publicly acknowledged that he "sponsored" Whitfield's selection, and has been urging the Committee to speed up action on it.

When hearings will be held on the appointment is uncertain. None have been scheduled and there is no indication when they will be. Both Senator Anderson and Representative Price are busy with other matters, as well as not being in any hurry to consider Whitfield.

They emphatically deny "filibustering" against him. But they don't deny taking their time.

"Why shouldn't we," says Price. "The Atomic Commission is getting along all right. It has four Commissioners and doesn't need a fifth to function. Matter of fact, several Commissioners have been complaining bitterly to us for months that Chairman Strauss has been largely running the Commission all by himself; that it has become a sort of 'one-man party' in which he makes the big policy decisions and the other Commissioners are told about them later."

"Also, the President took his time in naming Whitfield. This

State May Suffer Loss In Road Bill

—by H. G. Heller

The State of Pennsylvania stands to lose at least $11 million for road construction if the Senate Committee version of Federal highway legislation is adopted.

Twelve states throughout the country would lose a total of $2,155,595,000.

This was revealed by the citizens' Highways For Survival Committee, a non-political group of community leaders formed to achieve adequate roads for the United States.

There are two major highway bills now before Congress, Arthur D. Dietz, chairman of the Committee, explained. One was proposed by Senator Albert Gore of Tennessee. The other, the bipartisan Buckley-Dondero-Dempsey-Gore measure, is now the basis of hearings by the House Public Works Committee.

The bipartisan House measure contains the provision, originally suggested by President Eisenhower's Advisory Committee on Highways, that States which have already constructed portions of the vitally needed National System of Interstate Highways will be reimbursed for this forward-looking action. The Gore bill ignores this provision.

Thus, for toll roads alone—figures from the Bureau of Public Roads reveal that Pennsylvania, under the bipartisan House measure, would receive credit totaling $111,537,000.

"That money will build a lot of extra roads in the state," Dietz pointed out.

Under the bipartisan House measure, the formula for reimbursement to States is as follows: 40 per cent of the original cost, less financing and non-highway construction charges, of portions of the Interstate System built before December 31, 1951; 70 per cent for construction completed before December 31, 1953; and 90 per cent for all construction after that date.

Pennsylvania has completed $212 million worth of toll roads in the first category and $65 million in the second—for which the reimbursement would be $111,537,000.

Figures for non-toll roads, not yet available, will certainly boost the total reimbursement. Dietz pointed out.

better, when rabbits could go out for a little air without having two men trying to catch them to eat."

Senator Frederick Payne (R., Me.) sternly protected these "unfair political allusions," Douglas vigorously defended Russell's "restraint and tactful moderation."

"Had the distinguished Senator from Georgia been so minded," declared Douglas, "he could have recalled that historic comment of Marie Antoinette, when she was told the populace of Paris was without bread. She is alleged to have replied, 'Then let them eat cake.' What the Republican Administration is now saying to the American people is, 'Let them eat rabbit!'"

Even the Republicans joined in the laughter at this rally.

As I said I was ignorant of the art of angling that I thought I could cut a green cane pole, tie on a piece of string and a rusty hook, grub a few worms from under the woodpile—and catch fish . . .

Today I wouldn't think of advancing on a fish even the smallest stream—without being armed with all the latest paraphernalia of fishing technology . . .

I don't know this gent and, out of common courtesy, I assume that all he says is true. It's a tough life he leads and I am duly sympathetic.

But I know other fishermen who make noises of that same variety. And I stand ready to wager a small sum that most of them who talk about playing hooky in the good old days to pull whoppers out of the good old creek with a good old green cane pole and rusty hook never did it.

My private opinion is that they have got themselves confused with good old Tom Sawyer or even old Huck Finn, who led the kind of boyhood life a lot of other boys used to wish they could.

There comes a time in a man's life when he likes to think he really was a reckless devil in his early days. And sometimes he was, no doubt.

But I have had my normal share of schooling, starting back about 1910. And honesty compels me to testify that, to the best of my recollection, not much more hooky was played in those days than is played today.

Kids may not have liked going to school then as much as they do nowadays, but they went when they were supposed to.

It is also my private opinion that very few men ever caught any more fish with rusty hooks when they were kids than they catch now with what they use of the fancy tackle in their boxes. Chances are they are just mediocre fishermen and always were.

Not that I object to anyone's reminiscing about the good old days and lamenting the passing of their simple pleasures and easy-catch fish. That's a harmless enough pastime.

But when anybody gets to feeling sorry for himself because of all the expensive tackle he has to tote around nowadays, I feel bound to point out that there is still no law against fishing with a good old rusty hook.

Management-Labor Studies Required To Protect Wage, Community Life Of Worker

Apparently when a thesis that requires full study and accommodation to the national economy is given a title and is symbolized by initials, it is accepted rather than by title and initials than by substance. G.A.W. means Guaranteed Annual Wage, a system already in vogue in many enterprises.

In most industries, the assured annual wage is more difficult than in, say, a slaughter house, because the sale of the commodity may be seasonal or on order. Automobiles are an example of a seasonal industry; structural steel of an on order industry. There is much talk these days of the peaks and valleys in industry being leveled off, but in this conversation, the fact that a large share of production has, for more than a decade, been war production or what is euphemistically called defense production, is too often forgotten. Do we require war or the preparation for war to have full employment?

Walter Reuther's proposal is to supplement State unemployment compensation by the employer which is not exactly a guaranteed wage for work done. What the United Automobile Workers demand is that the Guaranteed Annual Wage plus Unemployment Compensation should be equal to the present take-home pay. This would only apply to those workers who have acquired seniority according to the union-company contract.

One of the problems that faces every worker in every industry in this country is what is called "automation." This is the growing fear among workers that the development of labor-saving and automatic machinery will result in reduced employment or unemployment.

While it is demonstrable that in the past, machines have made jobs, it is also demonstrable that in particular industries, automatic devices have become so perfected that few workers are necessary. It is not contended by anyone associated with either management or labor that the use of automatic devices should be reduced or curtailed; the point is made and has to be considered seriously that no interim period should be permitted to exist during which the purchasing power of large numbers of Americans should be sharply reduced or altogether removed, forcing them on the dole.

In a word, granted that new knowledge and techniques can free human beings from irksome and onerous toil and produce an abundance heretofore unknown, the task remains to minimize the perils of job displacement and family hardships.

It seems to me that this is so serious a problem that it cannot be solved by a strike which will not remove the problem no matter who wins. Involved in all this is the question of the smaller business which is being squeezed out of existence by taxes, wages, beneficial financing by the larger companies and the huge cost of advertising, particularly since the advent of television.

The question is whether it is beneficial to the American economy and to social conditions in this country if only huge monopolistic companies exist. That will not be solved by Attorney General Herbert Brownell's plethora of anti-trust suits, because if it requires say a quarter of a million dollars to buy one automatic machine to be on a competitive basis with an enormous firm, the small man cannot go into that sort of business. If Brownell breaks up large enterprises to prevent monopoly, he still cannot let small men how they can set up businesses which require huge capital outlays to get started and to reach a break-even point.

Nor is the solution to this problem government control of industry on either a Fascist or a Socialist basis. That would involve us in more problems, and less pleasant ones, than we face today.

In the older days of the free market, competition would solve the problem. But we are not living in the older days nor do we have a free market. We live in a mixed economy, a condition prolonged by the continuance of war-like conditions.

The solution does lie in management-labor studies as to how to protect not only the wage but the community life of the worker. We know, from experience during the Depression, that the major problem of unemployment is not the discomfiture of the individual, who can be put on the dole, but the reduced purchasing power of the entire population which leads to vast social and even political changes, some of which are antagonistic to a free society.

Chemistry Plays Major Role In Modern Life From Paints To Clothing, Metals To Plastics

By Arthur Edson

WASHINGTON, May 17 (AP)—The folks at the Manufacturing Chemists' Assn. are so proud today they are busting the synthetic buttons right off their miracle fiber suits. For this is National Chemical Progress Week, and the association reports:

"Products of chemistry are with us from the time we get up in the morning and brush our teeth with a chemical until we go to bed at night under a blanket made of synthetic fiber."

Unfortunately, from the chemists' viewpoint, not many of us spend all our waking moments thinking about the part chemistry plays in our lives.

"Take something like sulphuric acid," Cleveland Lane of the Association was saying moodily. "It's used in the steel and aluminum industries—necessary to all of us—but who thinks about that?"

Obviously it's tough, even for a chemist, to work oneself up over a tank full of sulphuric acid. Nor are poets apt to swing into action at the news that the production of one single item, sodium carbonate, used in soft drinks, is greater than the combined weight of all the copper and aluminum produced.

Yet there are fields in which the role of chemistry—now a 25-billion-dollar-a-year industry—can be appreciated by everyone. Possibly clothing is the best known. Here the advertisements continually point to the wonders of this or that man-made fiber. That's chemistry on the job.

An automobile maker says it takes 256 chemicals to produce a car.

Chemicals are used in fertilizers that help the crops grow, in the insecticides that keep the bugs away, and in the polyethylene bags that keep the food fresh in the groceries.

"And take paint," Lane said. "Several years ago I tried to paint our front room. Talk about work! 'Never again,' I said. Well, last year with the new rubber based paint—chemistry again—I did the job in an afternoon, and it was fun."

Everyone knows about plastics, of course, but did you know the whole thing was started because of elephant tusks and billiard balls? Association researchers say a horrible shortage of tusks so frightened the billiard ball manufacturers that they put up a $10,000 reward for the man who could invent a satisfactory substitute.

John Wesley Hyatt, an Albany, N. Y., printer who presumably was a latent pool shark, began to experiment with the collodion that print shops kept handy to use on small cuts and abrasions.

Well, the first thing Hyatt knew he had invented celluloid.

This still wasn't a billiard ball, and Hyatt didn't get the award. But it was the beginning of the plastics industry that was to rake in a billion dollars a year.

The first commercial use for plastics: in 1868, Hyatt began it all, with a brisk business in molded dental plates.

Hottest news in Hardtops is the 4-Door Riviera

Why take anything less than the sensation of the year?

WHEN you learn what's been done in the automobile pictured here, you can easily see why this beauty is winning rave notices coast to coast.

Buick engineers took the hardtop body design that has been growing tremendously in popularity over the past six years—and gave it four doors instead of two.

Simple? Sure—to all outward appearances.

But it took a brand-new kind of body with wholly new structural principles to do it—to bring this long-awaited new kind of automobile to the public in volume numbers and at popular prices.

For this is a true hardtop—with the sleek and racy look of a Convertible, because there are no center posts in the window areas on either side.

And now it has front doors for the front-seat passengers—and rear doors for the rear-seat passengers—plus room increased to the size of a full Sedan.

(It took some special kind of engineering magic, you can be sure, to hinge all four doors at their forward edges for greater safety, and more ease of entering and exiting.)

Local Delivered Price of the 1955 Buick SPECIAL $2325.88

HOTTEST NEWS IN AUTOMATIC DRIVES IS VARIABLE PITCH DYNAFLOW

It's the world's first transmission with the switch-pitch principle of the modern airplane's variable pitch propeller. You get better gas mileage in cruising. You switch the pitch just by pressing the gas pedal—and get lightning-like response for getaway, or for a sudden safety-surge of accelerating power. It's the performance thrill of the year. Standard on ROADMASTER, optional on other Series at no more extra cost than earlier versions of this wonder drive.

So it looks like Buick has scooped the industry again—and come up with the hottest news in hardtops since Buick originated the first two-door hardtop six years ago.

And you can have it now—in the low-price SPECIAL or the supremely-powered CENTURY—and either one at the modest extra cost of a 4-door model over a 2-door.

Drop in on us today—this week, for sure—and see how easily and how quickly one can be yours.

Real Estate Buyers Need Be On Guard

By David G. Bareuther
AP Real Estate Editor

HERE'S LUCK and happiness in your new home," said a guest at a housewarming party as he hoisted a cocktail glass, "May your floors never squeak and your roof never leak."

Assembled neighbors and friends of the family joined in the toast. But the moment they took the first sip of their cocktails, the house no longer belonged to the host.

There was a clause in his deed specifying that if this property ever should be used for the "manufacture, sale or consumption of intoxicating liquor, the title to said premises shall immediately and without notice or demand revert to the seller."

That's about the quickest way to drink yourself out of house and home that we ever heard of.

The story was told by George F. Anderson of the National Assn. of Real Estate Boards. "That's a vicious condition in a deed," he explained, "and buyers should be on the lookout against it."

When you buy real estate, it is not like buying groceries, or even an automobile. Lawyers say that no one actually owns land. What you own is a title to a piece of land together with whatever may be on that land. This right is contained in a deed.

And there are two main steps in buying real estate. One is the signing of a binding legal contract to buy it. The next is the actual taking of title. These two steps may be separated by a month or more in order to get all legal details worked out to make a foolproof deal.

Apparently our cocktail-serving home buyer had never read the deed to his property. Most certainly that anti-drinking clause or "restrictive covenant" as lawyers call it, was not mentioned in the contract of sale, or the buyer might not have signed it. Furthermore, if he had noticed that clause in the deed, he could have gotten out of any contract which had not mentioned such a restriction.

There are a lot of pitfalls in real estate contracts of sale. You are not the only person who may be baffled by them. More than 2,000 lawyers, specializing in real estate, recently pondered these technicalities at the Home Title Guaranty Co. symposium for attorneys in New York's Town Hall.

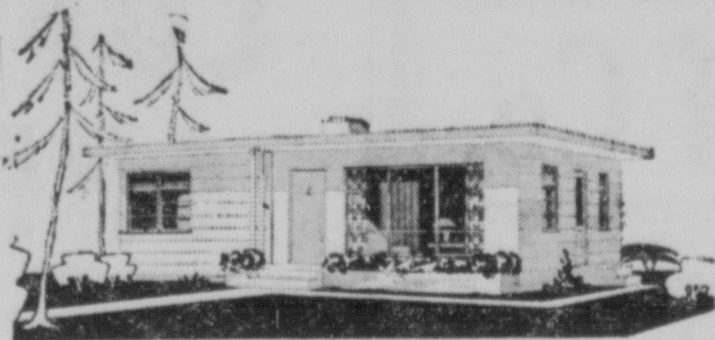

An expert, Milton R. Friedman, read a thesis devoted to the troubles people get into by signing contracts hastily. He emphasized the importance of having every pertinent detail mentioned in the contract.

"A contract of sale," he said, "is a rather final instrument. If something is not in the contract when it is signed, it is not apt to get into the deal later."

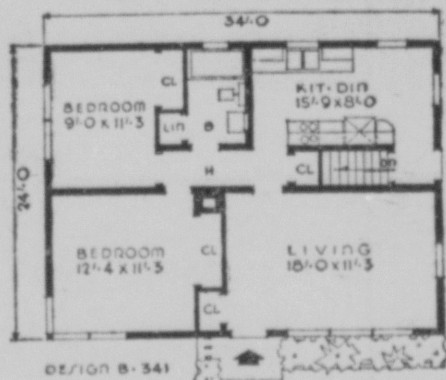

"Of course," he told the lawyers, "you can always ask for things," but after a contract is signed, your asking has no power behind it.

Among the many details you should have in a contract, Friedman cited mortgage terms, such as a right to pay off a mortgage ahead of time, "grace clauses" to allow enough time to pay interest and taxes before a loan may be called, cancellation of leases and who should pay for any compensation involved to get tenants out.

Getting actual possession of a house can be another problem that should be foreseen in your contract.

A SMALL HOUSE PLANNING BUREAU DESIGN NO. B-341

DESIGN B-341. For economy in building, this plan is hard to beat. The combination of the simple rectangular shape of the floor plan, without costly projections, and the flat roof results in substantial savings in the labor of cutting, fitting and framing.

The first floor has a minimum hall, connecting all of the compactly arranged rooms, consisting of the living room, combination kitchen-dinette, two bedrooms and a bath.

The floor area is only 816 square feet with a cubage of 13,056 feet.

Other features include wardrobe closets, linen cabinet, planter, wide roof projection, shingle siding and panoramic picture window.

Picture Window Wrong Place For Lamp, Decorators Say

A picture window usually is the focal point of the whole room, so a smart decorator centers attention on the window and lets nothing distract attention from it.

If the window area must be used for furniture, use a low table that will not cut the view, and use lightweight, open-backed chairs that give a feeling of space. If a reading light is needed near the area, it should be at the side of the window, not smack in the middle.

Arrange heavy pieces of furniture, such as the divan and large chairs, on the side of the room opposite the picture window.

Waste Of Money

INSULATION MORE than two inches thick is not generally recommended. A thicker layer usually cannot stop enough additional heat loss to justify its extra cost.

Standard Doorway

DOORWAYS in the home should be at least two feet eight inches wide.

tract. You may be buying the property, but can you move in?

Friedman recited a court case in which the man who sold his house refused to get out until after title had closed. The man who was buying the house insisted that the seller should be out before title closing. The court held that the man selling the house could stay there until the price had been paid and that the man buying the house could not break his contract merely on the possibility that the seller might break his word about getting out.

If more than 2,000 lawyers can worry about such things, home buyers and home sellers should read and understand what they sign.

Spruce Up Your Lawn Furniture

By VIVIAN BROWN
AP Newsfeatures Writer

OUTDOOR LIVING is part of the American scheme of enjoyment. So garden furniture has come into prominence.

Bamboo, rattan, redwood, wrought iron, aluminum, stainless steel and plastic are just a few of the materials that bring the outdoors into the realm of easy living.

Redwood is popular, easy to refinish and to keep looking new with this method: Sand, smoothing away wood fibers, using a holder for the sandpaper. Remove all wood dust with a clean dry brush or lint-free cloth. Two coats of color-toned resin sealer give a durable finish protecting your wood against warping, swelling.

Pores of wood are sealed against damaging moisture and special pigments filter out sun's rays. Resin color tones include driftwood, redwood, sage, cedar, mahogany or others, permitting natural wood grain to show through. Sand lightly between coats.

Outdoor metal furniture may be rejuvenated by washing, sandpapering rough or glossy surfaces, cracks and rust spots, and then painting. Give bare metal a coat of metal primer. Stir a speed enamel that is a nonfading weather protector. Use a clean soft-bristled brush.

Place tables upside down so you can do legs first. Eighteen colors are available in this enamel. High style colors include antique white, cream, dusky black, aqua, pale pink and coral this year. You can sprinkle a little gold metallic powder on newly painted surfaces before the paint dries for a special treat.

Bamboo and rattan are also being painted in a dull black finish—better for patio or covered terrace, however, than in the broiling sun. Reds, vivid green and blue paints are being used on other wood finishes. Cracks or nail head indentations should be filled in wood chairs with a spackling material before sanding and painting.

Fence posts and trellises may be protected from fungi and borers by using a wood preservative. Surfaces must be clean before applying liquid.

Garden walks and patios may be coated in gay colors with a waterproof enamel that provides weather protection.

1930—THEY SERVE ALOFT—1955

Ellen Church started it all.

AIR LINE STEWARDESSES are celebrating their 25th birthday this year, thanks to Ellen Church, a nurse who talked San Francisco executives into hiring girls on planes. Her idea hastened the acceptance of air travel at a time when many people were fearful of flying. Some 10,000 women today make a glamorous career out of serving passengers on planes. Those first eight sky girls earned $110 a month compared to the $190 to $260 base pay that today's stewardesses make for 60 to 65 hours of flying time a month. Those first girls served only coffee and cold food while today's stewardesses serve elaborate meals. Another attraction—hostessing is a path to the altar. Average length of stewardess' service is 27 months.

Today's uniform is chic.

600 Attend Sessions Of Alliance

REV. AND MRS. E. H. Hostetter of East Stroudsburg, accompanied by Miss Nellie Burd, of Delaware Water Gap attended recent meetings of the Council of Christian and Missionary Alliance Churches in Philadelphia. Some 600 persons attended the varied sessions in Benjamin Franklin Hotel, Town Hall and Convention Hall.

Amazing growth was reported in the past 67 years and particularly the last year. With all giving free-will offerings and no bazaars or suppers to raise money, the Alliance membership leads in per-capita giving. Last year the rate was $46.68 per person. One church in Indianapolis gave an average of $226 per member to missions.

Thursday the women held a meeting to report for their prayer groups of which there are 769. Mrs. A. Bailey, from Canada, presided and Mrs. Helen Curlak, missionary in Africa, spoke. She cited instances in which definite prayer for a definite missionary had brought help when needed.

The whole council spent much time in prayer and especially for the family of the lost pilot Al Lewis. He and the Alliance seaplane disappeared last month while on a trip from Baliem, This is the hidden valley, the "Shangri-La" which explorer Richard Archbold discovered in the early 1940s. Newspapers electrified readers with news of discovery of tribes never contacted by civilized man. Rocky steep, dizzy heights prevented access by boat or wagon. An army plane with three pilots crashed over those cliffs in 1945.

Alliance missionaries won government permission to be taken into the valley by seaplane which could light for a brief time on a river, though often that becomes so low that even a seaplane cannot land. For five months at a time the two missionaries and their wives and children are cut off from the rest of the world. The native tribes are savage and warlike; but have been friendly or neutral so far in their attitude toward the Christian workers who are trying to master the language well enough to give them the Gospel. At the women's prayer meeting, an offering of over $200 was taken to start a fund for a new seaplane. There are only 26 in the world and it may not be able to purchase one even when the $100,000 is given.

Ed. Ulrich, a companion pilot on the lost plane, spoke to the Alliance folk and told of the 170,000 pounds of cargo dropped into the Baliem valley in 15 months of plane service during 160 round trips with freight. Even storage batteries filled with acid were safely landed when the plane could not find enough water for landing.

A chorus of over 60 Alliance ministers, trained while at the council by Dr. R. R. Brown of Omaha, Neb., sang at the evening meetings. Rev. Alan Redpath, the English minister called to the Chicago Moody Church, spoke Thursday night on wholehearted obedience to the "constraining love" of Christ.

Rev. and Mrs. R. Stebbins of Viet Nam mission were rejoicing because of word that their son-in-law and daughter got out of Saigon, by request of the mission secretary, just two days before the bombardment and slaughter of recent warfare. The Stebbins had been in India as missionaries when Rev. and Mrs. E. H. Hostetter were serving there.

Sunday afternoon 125 missionaries in native costume reported briefly on their stations. The worker from Palestine carried a live sheep to emphasize the need to seek the lost sheep. The Alliance is the only evangelical mission working in Indochina, Viet Nam, Laos and Cambodia. They have opened the first station in Tierra Del Fuego, South America, historic in missionary tragedies; and have started a second Messianic center in the Bronx, N. Y. After the regular Sunday offering of $1300, request was made to take a special offering for mission needs. Following prayer, $3000 was received in the second offering. The past year's mission giving was $3,199,297.

The Hostetters were particularly interested in the talk by the newly elected president of the Alliance Mission, Rev. H. L. Turner, who was born in Canada. Mr. Hostetter had traveled with him some months in Alliance work after their return from India.

Stock List Shows Weakness After Staggering Aimlessly

NEW YORK, May 17 (AP)—The stock market went through a hesitant day today and finally closed lower.

Aircraft displayed signs of improvement as the market did better but they turned down when the final lower push started. Losses today weren't extensive. They usually were fractional. But some went to around 2 points. Gains were much the same—mostly small with some running to around 3 points.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off 10 cents at $160.20. The fall yesterday of $2.20 was the second heaviest of the year. The industrial component of the average today was down 10 cents, while rails remained unchanged, and utilities lost 20 cents.

The list was rather narrow with 1,178 individual issues traded of which 423 advanced and 474 declined with only 18 new highs for the year registered and 44 new lows touched.

Volume was only 1,900,000 shares. That compares with 2,160,000 traded yesterday. Both are quite low when compared with the daily average so far this year of nearly three million shares.

The American Stock Exchange was mixed on volume of 550,000 shares as compared with 720,000 shares traded yesterday.

The bond market was irregular. U. S. government issues in the

Just Between Us

—By Bobby Westbrook

The Business and Professional Women's Club is lucky to have enough officers-material to be able to run a double slate of officers. Their elections, far from being the cut and dried affair they are in most organizations, are really exciting.

It does something else, too—gets a crowd out for the annual business meeting. The Junior Woman's Club also have a crowd-getter in the fact that they vote for their next year's project and its beneficiary at the annual meeting.

The Stroudsburg PTA really packed them in by starting the younger music students of the school for the final meeting. However for the most part, annual business meetings are among the poorest attended of the year for most groups.

It's strange, too, that it should be so. The annual reports should make interesting listening to the people who worked to make them so impressive. They vote their perfectly good money to pay the expenses of delegates to conventions, and then stay away in droves when the delegates fired with convention enthusiasm and ideas are scheduled to tell about them.

Even stranger is the fact that so many people stay home from primary elections when their vote really counts, and when the people they elect will have more effect on their every-day life than the President of the United States.

And everywhere there are paintings by Mr. Strauser himself . . . portraits of people you know and recognize; a striking self-portrait of the artist, wearing a green eye shield that casts an interesting shadow over his nose; paintings of horses singly and on the track at Hoshen . . . giraffes . . . flowers . . . cows lolling in a pasture. And whether it tends toward realism or toward the abstract, there is always in a Strauser painting a certain indefinable something that spells "genius" in big letters. I am not an artist . . . I don't understand all that Strauser paints. But I do know that his work grows on me. I never tire of it.

Mr. Strauser had painted the Journal flowers in several ways. Some were in vivid colors . . . some more subdued. Some were so real one could almost pluck them. Others were impressionistic. But the most beautiful of all to my way of thinking was one inscribed "The Journal Bouquet to Madalyn, Strauser, '53." Never before has an oil been painted with me in mind. And never did I dream that Doug's prophecy would be so easily and so satisfyingly fulfilled.

Sterling Strauser is a modest man. He could tell you right off that his paintings are owned by Jose Ferrer, Billa Spewack, and numerous other celebrities . . . or that he has just sold three illustrations to one of America's foremost magazines. But he doesn't. You learn this gradually, through questioning. You learn too that he goes his own blissful way, painting according to his own mood and plan. Let other artists talk about camel hair brushes if they like. He most frequently uses a one-inch house paint brush that costs 11 cents at Sears . . . and the effect is misty and beautiful.

Long after the Strausers had left, I unearthed a picture book and hung the painting. Once it was in place, I put a stack of records on the record player, and stretched out on the couch. As I studied the flowers I wondered just how much luck one person can have! Somehow I felt much like the Psalmist who wrote, "My cup runneth over."

Election Night For BPW Club

The Stroudsburg Business and Professional Women's Club will hold election of officers at their dinner meeting on Thursday night at the Penn-Stroud Hotel. No empty formality the Business and Professional Woman's Club run a double set of officers to be elected by the vote of those present.

The annual reports summarizing the year's activities will be given at the meeting. This is the last meeting at the Penn-Stroud for the season and a large attendance is expected.

About 13 per cent more trees were planted in 1954 than in the preceding year in the United States.

Several months ago when Douglas Gordon was advising me in the decoration of my new apartment, we were bothered by an expanse of wall in the living room where nothing really looked well. Several oil paintings were hung, but as Doug pointed out, they did nothing for the room. "Let's not rush it," he finally said. "Leave the wall bare for a while. Some time you'll happen upon just the right painting or picture, and you'll recognize it at once—and that'll be it."

That's exactly how it was . . . but it all came about so suddenly and incredibly, I'm still wondering when I'll stop dreaming. I mentioned Monday that a local artist had asked if he might paint the bouquet presented to me by the Ladies' Home Journal. Well, the artist was Sterling Strauser, and on Sunday afternoon he telephoned to say he'd been painting all weekend. Most of the flowers were beginning to droop badly, he reported, but the orchids were still fresh and beautiful. If I would care to wear them in the evening, he'd gladly bring them to my house . . . and if I'd care to see the paintings, he and his wife would be happy to have me visit them. They even pick me up and transport me home.

That's how, on Monday evening, I happened to be entertained by two of the nicest, friendliest people it's been my pleasure to meet in some time. A visit with the Strausers is a real treat, for their home is not just a house inhabited by two congenial, gifted people—it's a museum, and a studio. There are hand carved masks on the wall such as are worn by African medicine men in their tribal rites . . . there are paintings by some of the foremost artists of this and other days . . . there are fascinating posters . . . and on the kitchen wall are dozens of cookie cutters of all sizes, many of them saved for Mrs. Strauser by antique dealers who are well aware of her prized collection.

And everywhere there are paintings by Mr. Strauser himself . . . portraits of people you know and recognize; a striking self-portrait of the artist, wearing a green eye shield that casts an interesting shadow over his nose; paintings of horses singly and on the track at Hoshen . . . giraffes . . . flowers . . . cows lolling in a pasture. And whether it tends toward realism or toward the abstract, there is always in a Strauser painting a certain indefinable something that spells "genius" in big letters. I am not an artist . . . Chou's Pledge Eases Tension In Far East

By J. M. Roberts
Associated Press News Analyst

Although it represents no fundamental change in the situation, Chou En-lai's statement that Red China will move toward acquisition of Formosa "by peaceful means as far as possible" does tend to ease Far Eastern tension, at least for the moment.

The Peiping regime is left, of course, free to determine how far is possible.

Chou's emphasis on the attitude of the Bandung conference, however, makes it clear his latest words are directed largely to that audience, which serves as something of a guarantee that he will not immediately violate them. In other words, Red China will do a lot more talking before she commits herself militarily.

Even though American policy as represented by the 7th Fleet practically assures no attack on Formosa under present circumstances — because the Reds know it couldn't succeed — Chou's statement permits continuation of the current "feeler" operations in a better atmosphere.

The Chinese Nationalists — and most other observers as well — will see little in it but guile. It does, as they say, represent another effort to set up a Far Western Munich. It does tend to shift the burden for further approaches to negotiation to the United States.

Chou, with a wily turn of phrase, says negotiations are "daily becoming the unanimous demand" of nations and peoples who want to see peace. That comes only a few days after President Eisenhower's reference to a similar demand for Big Four negotiations over Europe.

The statement completely fails to meet the recent British request that Chou enlarge upon his Bandung suggestion for negotiations with the United States. He merely adds "alternate" ways, without specification, to the original Communist suggestion, made by Russia, that a 10-nation conference held. Most of the other phraseology follows closely that of his Bandung announcement.

BLIND Bill Gurland "sees" a pro-people by running his hand over the blade at La Guardia Field, New York, while First Officer Frank Pabian explains how it works. The sightless youngster was among a group of similarly handicapped school children taken on a tour of the airport.

Red China, like the United States, continues to avoid commitments about Quemoy and Matsu. As the days pass, however—and it has now become a month since some people expected a crisis—the Red buildup on the adjacent mainland which set off the excitement appears to have been designed more to bolster Peiping's diplomatic hand than as an immediate military threat.

Varsity 'S' To Honor Lettermen Today

Jerry Palaia

JERRY PALAIA, very popular basketball coach at East Stroudsburg State Teachers College, will speak to an expected large crowd at the fourth annual Varsity "S" Association Spring Banquet to be held at the Thomas P. Lambert Veterans of Foreign Wars Post today.

Thirty-three varsity athletic letter winners at Stroudsburg High during the present school year will be honored at the dinner, scheduled to begin at 6:30 p.m.

A total of 17 senior letter winners will receive the annual jacket award presented by the Varsity "S" membership each year.

Palaia's talk will deal mainly with basketball, but will touch on football and baseball as well.

An outstanding program has been arranged by Warren "Mag" Loney and his program committee and one of the largest crowds in the history of the annual event is expected to be on hand for the program.

Jack Mullins, well known sportsman who made his mark on the local athletic world as president of the Monroe County Softball League for the past two years and now as president of the Stroudsburg Little League, will serve as toastmaster at tonight's gala banquet.

Tickets, priced at $2.50, are still available for tonight's banquet. They may be purchased at Community Jewelers, DeVivo's Shoe Repair Shop and at radio station WVPO.

Loney revealed that the program will open with the singing of America and the Invocation will be delivered by Earl F. Groher, superintendent of Stroudsburg Schools. A turkey dinner will be served.

Sam Everitt, club president, will make a few remarks and introduce Mullins, who in turn will present Palaia to the group. Tom Waring will make his scholarship award and the club will present letters and jackets to the letter winners. Jackets go to the graduating lettermen. The group will sing the Star Spangled Banner to close the meeting.

A football film, loaned to the Varsity "S" Association by Bob Kasey, will be shown of a game in 1932. Coach Jerry Stulgaitis will follow with one of a 1954 contest.

Bangor Dumps Hellertown In Final Contest

HELLERTOWN — Bangor High completed its Lehigh-Northampton League baseball season with a thrilling 5-4 victory over Hellertown here on the latter's home diamond yesterday.

The win was the third in eight LNL starts for the Slayers, while Hellertown has now lost four of seven outings.

Bangor picked up two runs in the first when Dick Hess walked, went to second on a sacrifice by Vern Smith and scored on a single by Jack Stenlake. Stenlake took second on the throw-in and moved to third when the ball got away from Lyslek. Don Keat singled to plate Stenlake.

Hellertown went ahead with three counters in the bottom of the first. Frank Egli walked and moved to second when Bob Fenstermacher was hit by a pitched ball. Joe McGoldrick batted out his first of two doubles to left center field to score Egli and ship Fenstermacher to third. Ed Schrader singled to score the Hellertown shortstop and send McGoldrick to third, from where he tallied on a squeeze bunt by Mike McCall.

Bangor evened the count with a singleton in the second when Jim Freeman singled, pitcher Gary Strauss walked and Egli threw wild on a boulder by Hess.

Hellertown went to the front again with one more counter in the bottom of the third. McGoldrick's high fly dropped between Smith and Stenlake in left center field for a double and Schrader followed with a triple to send McGoldrick home.

Bangor evened matters in the fourth when Duane Miller, Glen Heard and Jim Freeman singled and then went in front when "Jabby" Williams singled, was sacrificed to second and tallied when Miller's one-play blow wrapped up the fifth frame.

Chestnuthill Certain Of Tie For Title

TOBYHANNA — Chestnuthill assured itself of at least a tie for first place in the final standings of the Monroe County Baseball League yesterday with a convincing 10-5 verdict over Coolbaugh, here on the latter's home field.

A big five-run outburst in the sixth inning gave Chestnuthill its seventh victory in eight outings. The loss was the fifth in eight trips to the post for Coolbaugh, as each club played its final game of the regular season.

Poccano is currently one-half game behind Chestnuthill in the standings, six wins and one loss, and must win against Tobyhanna Township on Friday to tie for the regular season title.

STOLEN BASE—Dave Nevil, Stroudsburg first baseman, is pictured above sliding into third base in a cloud of dust after stealing the far sack in the sixth inning against Pen Argyl yesterday. Don Valletta is the Pen Argyl third sacker. Stroudsburg went on to score a 3-2 nod over Pen Argyl.

Chestnuthill trailed Coolbaugh for three innings yesterday before jumping on Jim Kinley for three counters in the fourth, one in the fifth and five in the sixth. Bob Sapp held the defending title holder hitless in the last inning.

Coolbaugh found Dick Bizovsky tough, but did manage to score twice in the first, once in the fourth and twice in the seventh off the big right hander.

Kinley tried desperately to swing the balance in his favor with a home run to right field with the sacks empty in the fourth.

Bizovsky lashed out a double and single in addition to holding Coolbaugh to eight hits.

Chestnuthill banged out a dozen safeties off Kinley.

Coolbaugh aided its own downfall by committing four errors in the field, while Chestnuthill was charged with only one defensive blunder.

Red Sox End Win Drought Against Tribe

BOSTON, May 17 (AP)—The Boston Red Sox, embarrassed by 11 straight losses to Cleveland last season, ended the Tribe's misery in Fenway Park today by blasting the American League leaders for a 10-3 victory.

The victory was only the fourth for the Red Sox over the Indians in their last 26 decisions over a two-year period. The Indians won 20 of 22 last season and had taken three straight earlier this season in Cleveland.

Jackie Jensen, with his eighth homer of the season—with two on—Eddie Joost, with his second of the year with none on, and Gene Stephens with a double and a triple paced the Boston assault.

The Indians were weakened by the loss of three regular infielders.

Bird Hurls Two-Hitter As Lake Ariel Raps Stags, 7-1

NEWFOUNDLAND—Lake Ariel hunched its runs in the middle innings here yesterday to hang a 7-1 baseball defeat on Greene-Dreher-Stirling High, here on the losing contingent's home field.

Howard Bird pitched a tight two-hit contest against the Stags, giving up singles to Henry "Hank" Olanowicz and to Ronnie Olanowicz during the course of the contest.

Meanwhile, Lake Ariel broke a 1-1 tie with three counters in the third, a pair in the fifth and a singleton in the sixth.

Lake Ariel touched up Tom Klepido for seven safeties.

Briefs Takes Brief Bat Drill

BOSTON, May 17 (AP)—Boston slugger Ted Williams, rounding into condition for his return to the Red Sox lineup, took another brief workout today in chilly Fenway Park.

Despite a big blister on his right hand, Williams changed his mind and took a light batting drill before the Red Sox-Cleveland game. He had planned to forego hitting practice for "a couple of days" because of the blister.

Rookie Pitches Cards To Verdict Over Dodgers

ST. LOUIS, May 17 (AP)—Rookie right-hander Larry Jackson of the St. Louis Cardinals shut out the league-leading Brooklyn Dodgers tonight on 10 hits, 3-0, scoring the Redbirds' fourth straight victory on the strength of home runs by "Red" Schoendienst and Ken Boyer.

Jackson, 23-year-old Idahoan, held the Dodgers hitless in only one inning, but walked just one batter as he continued a string of sensational St. Louis pitching that has permitted the opposition just one run the last four games.

Victim in this pitching duel before a crowd of 22,667 was Carl Erskine, little Dodger ace who suffered his first 1955 defeat against five victories, a result of Schoendienst's fifth-inning homer into the screenless rightfield pavilion. Erskine yielded five hits in six frames.

The Cardinals' last four safeties came off Jim Hughes and included Boyer's drive into the rightfield stands after a double by Bill Sarni in the seventh.

Lions Told Of Program For Scouts

THE LIONS Club of the Stroudsburg became better acquainted with the many functions and purposes of the Boy Scouts of America program, at their regular meeting last night in the Penn Stroud Hotel. The speaker was Lion Jacob Kintz, who has long been active in Scout affairs.

Mr. Kintz pointed out that Monroe County has easily exceeded its 1955 quota for new Scout recruits, but emphasized that the movement is now in dire need of individual and service organization support for adult guidance. Men are needed, he said to act as leaders, counselors and advisers in the many phases of Scout activities.

The speaker also dwelt on the all-inclusive scope of Scouting, how it covers all age groups, all races, creeds and color.

The extreme benefits of Scout training to the youth of today was further attested to by Mr. Kintz. A recent crime survey, he reported, established that very few men and boys with Boy Scout backgrounds, ever became involved in law defying episodes.

Kintz concluded his talk with a color film, depicting the evolution of a Boy Scout, from his first entry as Cub Scout, then as a Scout and finally as an Explorer Scout.

91-Year-Old Pastor Dies; Formerly Of Wayne County

JACKSONVILLE, Fla., May 17 (AP)—An old preacher who couldn't find a congregation is dead.

He was the Rev. Charles E. Neal, 91, who died Sunday night in a rest home.

Neal moved here from Beach Lake, Pa., about seven years ago and established an "interdenominational" church—a small chapel with a hundred folding chairs and living quarters in the rear.

When the people didn't come to hear him preach, the Rev. Neal built a steel tower in his back yard, installed a high-powered amplifying system, and broadcast his messages. The neighbors complained so much that he finally stopped.

Neal handed out tracts on the street and induced other ministers to bring in Sunday School groups in hopes of stimulating interest. It didn't work.

Last month he made a new will in which he requested that he be cremated and the ashes buried at the foot of his loudspeaker tower. The document was filed for probate today.

He willed $200 each to four relatives.

And he left the rest of his estate to be divided among "the party or parties who are carrying on the work of my church."

The estate is worth about $17,000. Beach Lake is in Wayne County, Pa.

France Asks U.S. To Recall Some Officials

WASHINGTON, May 17 (AP)—France has proposed that the United States recall some American diplomats and military officials who, it alleges, are following an anti-French policy in Red-threatened South Indochina.

Premier Edgar Faure is understood to have made this request personally to Secretary of State Dulles in Paris during last week's round of top-level conferences on Indochina problems.

Dulles has made no promises on whether he will comply, informants said, but has invited the French to submit the names of any Americans who they believe are hostile to their interests.

The French are now reported drafting such a list. It is not known specifically how many persons they intend to complain about, but in the past they have registered informal objections to some American diplomats in Saigon and Army officers attached to a training mission.

Dulles' basic attitude, it was said, is that he will not pull out any official who is loyally carrying out State Department policy just because the French object to his conduct.

Most of the French complaints are reported to grow from a belief that some Americans are working too closely with Premier Ngo Dinh Diem's Viet Nam government, encouraging its increasingly bitter anti-French line.

Dulles agreed during the Paris talks to advise the Diem government to tone down its anti-French propaganda in return for a French pledge to continue to support Diem's regime.

At the same time, however, he told Faure the French themselves could contribute even more to the end of anti-French feeling by convincing the Vietnamese they are not secretly plotting to overthrow Diem's government.

Most American officials informed about the Paris conferences believe the talks have eased a sharp conflict in American-French policies in Indochina. But there appears to be little evidence to support early reports that both
